

Words of Wisdom from...

Abraham Lincoln

“To correct the evils, great and small, which spring from want of sympathy and from positive enmity among strangers, as nations or as individuals, is one of the highest functions of civilization.”

“Every man is said to have his peculiar ambition.”

“If you would win a man to your cause, first convince him that you are his sincere friend. Therein is a drop of honey that catches his heart, which, say what you will, is the great high-road to his reason, and which, when once gained, you will find but little trouble in convincing his judgment of the justice of your cause.”

“What is necessary to change a person is to change his awareness of himself.”

“Character is like a tree and reputation like its shadow. The shadow is what we think of it; the tree is the real thing. Be sure you put your feet in the right place, then stand firm.”

“I never had a policy; I have just tried to do my very best each and every day.”
